CompulsoryVon Phillip Taylor MBEA COMPULSORY CASEBOOK FOR ALL THOSE AFFECTED BY PROFESSIONAL CONDUCT MATTERSAn appreciation by Phillip Taylor MBE and Elizabeth Taylor of Richmond Green ChambersAs the chairman of the Law Commission, Lloyd Jones LJ says in his Foreword to Kenneth Hamers second edition of the Professional Conduct Casebook, that the title is an invaluable means of keeping on top of the ever-increasing flow of reports of disciplinary cases.Case studies remain at the heart of this casebook which is the only

book to analyse all key professional conduct and competence cases in one single, portable volume. There are over 1,000 reported cases, 250 being new to this edition. The analyses of these 1,000 cases across an extensive range of professions, as well as offering incisive summaries of the cases, legal framework, and general principles. There is unparalleled breadth here with over 70 issue-specific chapters covering everything you need to know, from abuse of process to vulnerable witnesses. The casebook comes in an easy-to-use A-Z format, providing quick and logical navigation to the matter at hand. The cases are helpfully cross-referenced to other relevant chapters. They are written by an acknowledged expert in the area, with extensive experience of disciplinary proceedings across numerous professions. One major difficulty for the practitioner is that the number of regulatory and disciplinary cases coming before the courts has increased dramatically in recent years, reflecting the rise in the number of complaints made against professionals of all kinds with successive governments seeking more transparency in the handling of such complaints. The work covers a wide range of professions including medicine and healthcare, the law, accountancy, financial services, the police, prison service, and sport, the law in this field has become increasingly vital and complex. Hamer's Professional Conduct Casebook is a leading authority and continues to be the only book to provide comprehensive coverage of the growing body of case law in this developing area. There are 71 chapters in total analyzing all key professional conduct and competence cases in just one volume. This book distills the general principles from the legislative framework and offering lucid and informed summaries for today's busy practitioner. Also, it contains extensive summaries of the decisions reached in each case by the court. The book covers every issue arising in the course of professional conduct proceedings, from absence of the practitioner right through to the unrepresented practitioner (litigant in person) and witnesses. Hamer expertly identifies all of the relevant source material that needs to be considered when confronted by a specific issue, and provides clear, practical guidance. Practitioners will find that each chapter examines the legal framework of all the applicable statutory and non-statutory provisions, details any relevant guideline remarks which set out general principles, and it summarizes all relevant case law, making the casebook an indispensable source of reference for every regulatory and disciplinary lawyer and anyone engaged in this work. The law is as stated at 1st March 2015.

In what must be an extraordinarily time-consuming exercise of reading and distilling hundreds of new cases, Hamer has saved enormous amounts of research time for those of us who toil in the regulatory vineyard. In every respect, this is a worthy successor to the first edition. * Greg Treverton-Jones QC, Law Society Gazette * Kenneth's book remains an invaluable aid to practitioners in the field of regulatory and disciplinary work and, as noted in the forward to the new edition by the Rt Hon. Lord Justice Lloyd Jones, Chairman of the Law Commission, 'Kenneth deserves the warm thanks and congratulations of a grateful profession. * Nicole Curtis, Partner, Pennigtons, ARDL Quarterly Bulletin * Hamer's Professional Conduct Casebook is a leading authority and continues to be the only book to provide comprehensive coverage of the growing body of case law in this developing area.
